DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

1. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 3/17/04 has been entered.

Claim Objections

2. Claim 9 is objected to because of the following informalities: "the" before "message", "characteristic", and "communication" should be changed to --a--. Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

4. Claims 1, 9, and 11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Korshun, US Patent No. 5,952,641.

Korshun discloses a security device for controlling the access to a personal computer or to a computer terminal comprising: a portable chip card reader 7; a chip card 8 coupled to the reader; a fingerprint sensor coupled to the reader; validation means for validating information from the chip card depending on biometric data, wherein the fingerprint sensor comprises an interface (antenna) for connecting to a network (see figures 1-3; col. 2, line 7+).

Re claim 9, wherein data from the fingerprint sensor is exchanged with the communication environment via the interface (see col. 2, line 7+).

Re claim 11, wherein the portable chip card reader is equipped with an interface for a connection to a local host device to established a secure communication between the local host and the network (see figures 1, 3).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

6. Claims 2-6, 10, and 12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Korshun. The teachings of Korshun have been disclosed above.

Korshun teaches a wireless connection interface for interfacing the card to the reader and for transmitting data from the sensor to the network, but fails to disclose or fairly suggests using a plug connection/bus connection and contact card reader. However, having a plug connection/bus connection and contact reader, falls within the engineering design choice for coupling the component parts.

It would have been obvious for a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the system of Korshun to employ plug connection/bus connection and having contact card reader, for interfacing to the portable device. Such modification would simplify the design structure and would improve the system performance by the improving the communication between the portable reader and the other components. Therefore, it would have been an obvious extension as taught by Korshun.
